FOREWORD

Transcript Warning:

All written transcripts are imperfect abstracts of spoken conversation. Variations in sound quality and in the aural acuity of listeners can and do produce wide variations in what is heard. Even though transcripts may be prepared at great effort and with great care, many points of ambiguity are inevitable, and erroneous interpretations from transcripts are always possible. Therefore, to ensure full confidence in any and all quotations from the presidential recordings, users are strongly urged to check all transcript renditions against the actual tape recordings before publication.

Copyright:

The donors assigned copyright that they might have in the recordings to the United States; however, copyright of the donors does not extend beyond statements uttered by John F. Kennedy, his minor children, and the donors themselves. Statements uttered by officials of the United States government in the course of their duties are considered to be in the public domain. Users of this material are cautioned, however, that not all persons recorded were members of the Kennedy family or government officials. A number of the people recorded were, at the time of recording, private citizens. Therefore, those intending to quote from this material beyond the accepted limits of fair use are cautioned to determine the copyright implications of any intended publication.

Punctuation:

The following conventions are used throughout the transcripts:

* * *	To indicate a pause in the recording while the speaker listens to the person speaking at the other end of the telephone. Used when only one side of a telephone conversation is recorded
[ ?]	When the transcriber is not certain of what is said on the recording.
	To indicate a sentence which the speaker trails off without completing it.
	When a speaker is interrupted before a sentence is completed.
	To indicate the speaker's emphasis.
[ ]	Used to enclose editorial comments of the transcriber such as /Meeting appears to be breaking up/ or /Several speakers speak at once and none of the words are intelligible./

Names:

The first time a name is mentioned, the full name is provided whenever it is known. "JFK" and "RFK" are used for President Kennedy and Robert Kennedy, respectively. When the identity of a speaker is unknown, "Speaker?" is used; when the identification of a speaker is uncertain, a question mark follows the name. The heading of each transcript gives the names of all participants listed in the President's Appointment Books as scheduled to attend the meeting.

Preparation:

These electronic documents were created from transcripts available in the audiovisual research room in the John F. Kennedy Library. The transcripts were scanned using optical character recognition and the resulting text files were proofread against the original transcripts. Some formatting changes were made.

July 26, 1963

JFK: Hello.

Truman: 1 Mr. President.

JFK: How are you?

Truman: Well, I'm all right and I want to congratulate you on that treaty.

JFK: Well, I think Averell Harriman<sup>2</sup> did a good job and, I think, it, uh, protects our interests without, uh, but on the other hand maybe it's going to help.

Truman: I do too, and I'm writing you a personal confidential letter about, uh, certain paragraphs in it, which, uh, uh, I know you're familiar with it but that I [looked at because that's what you'd want me to do?].

JFK: Right. Right.

Truman: But I'm in complete agreement with what, what it provides /words unintelligible]. My goodness life, maybe we can save a total war with it.

JFK: Well, I think, that's the whole, uh, I think that's just to see where we go and see what happens with China. I think that's our. . . .

Truman: Well, and I'm, I'm congratulating you on getting that thing done. I think it's a wonderful thing.

JFK: Well, I appreciate that very much, Mr. President, that's very generous and I, and I'm going to make a li-...

Truman: I will send a special airmail letter from me, uh, confirming what I'm saying to you now.

JFK: Good, fine. Well, I think that anything you say about it will be very helpful.

Truman: Well, I'm not going to say anything publicly until you give me permission to do it.

JFK: Yeah, well, I think . . .

Truman: I don't like these fellows who quote the president on [interpretation?].

JFK: Well, no, but I tell you what. I'm going to make a speech tonight then any time you could say anything would be very helpful.

Truman: I'll be glad to do it.

JFK: Fine.

Truman: I'm going to the, St. Louis tomorrow . . .

JFK: Yeah.

Truman: ... to the American Legion convention ...

JFK: Yeah.

Truman: ... do you think that's a good /time?/?

JFK: What, I can't imagine a better.

Truman: I'll, I'll make statements on the subject if it's satisfactory with you in connection with the letter which I am sending you. You'll get it in the morning.

JFK: That'd be very helpful.

Truman: Well, I want to do it the way you want it.

JFK: Well, fine. Well, if you could say something tomorrow, I think that would really give us a lift.

Truman: I'll be glad to say it. I thought maybe, uh, Sunday morning's papers might be a good place to say it.

JFK: Oh, good. That's fine, [Mr.?] President. Well, you sound in good shape.

Truman: [Oh, I'm?] alright. Only trouble with me is that the main difficulty I have is [keeping?] the wife satisfied. [Laughter].

JFK: [Laughter]. Well, that's alright.

Truman: Well, you know I've had the [word unintelligible] and she's very much afraid

I'm gonna hurt myself--well, you know I'm not.

JFK: Yeah. Yeah.

Truman: /Word unintelligible/ I want to do whatever'll be helpful to you.

JFK: Well, that's fine, I think anything you can say tomorrow'd be very good.

Truman: All right.

JFK: Thank you very much. [Yeah. Bye?]
